

in shakespeare the commonest agent of nemesis, is military action here it is social action. people can depend for their sense of self on what others think of them, where gatsby strains it to the breaking point